Why it matters ?

Reused cooking oil above safe limits generates harmful TPC (Total Polar Compounds), causing serious health risks — from hypertension to cancer.

What RUCO does ?

Collect used cooking oil from your kitchens via authorized RUCO aggregators. It gets converted into clean biodiesel — a circular economy win.

Profile:

Making delicious chocolate requires high-quality ingredients and an all-encompassing passion for the final product. Cdr. Kuruvilla's chocolate-making journey began with a visit to his family estate, where he noticed unpicked and broken cocoa pods scattered around. This sight sparked his curiosity about stepping into the world of chocolate making.

At the same time, in the 1970s, a surge in international cocoa prices led many planters in Kerala to switch to growing cocoa beans. Yet, the following global production boom caused a local market crash, leading to severe losses and abandoned crops. At the time, Kerala had no indigenous chocolate industry, and all cocoa beans were grown for export. Sensing a serendipitous opportunity, Cdr. Kuruvilla began his chocolate maker adventure. After years of research, designing the required in-house machinery, and perfecting the flavour, this is how Cocoacraft was officially launched in 2008.

Today, we source the finest Indian cocoa beans and batch-roast them to perfection, ourselves, right here in India. This dedication has led to us creating a unique flavour and texture that makes Cocoacraft synonymous with high-quality chocolate created to high standards.
